What is Fair Trade?

“Fair trade” represents an innovative, market-based strategy that works to ensure fair labor practices and environmental sustainability in commodity and craft production abroad.

Fair trade goods are often comparably priced with conventional goods, due to a more direct supply chain.

Fair Trade: A Useful Strategy for Purchasers

- Fulfill a “sustainability” policy beyond environmental issues (labor fairness, etc.)
- Help show commitment to sustainability, fair wages, and the public good
- Complements to “local” food purchasing for imported goods
- Clear certification labels make purchasing easier

Which Products?

Coffee, Tea, Sugar, Cocoa

- Widely available in the marketplace
- Price-competitive
- Shelf-stable
- Part of a beverage service
Fair Trade Policy Language
Coffee, Tea, Sugar and Cocoa

• “All coffee, tea, sugar or cocoa products shall be purchased with a fair trade certification from Fair Trade USA, Fair for Life, or Fairtrade America.

• “These requirements apply to all purchases of coffee, tea, sugar and cocoa through use of commodity and service contracts where food or other covered products are supplied, including employees’ purchase cards (p-cards).

• “All purchases of fair trade product shall be tracked by the vendor, and presented in an annual report with the total volume or dollar amount of fair trade purchases.”
Certifications and Labels

Certifiers verify that production of goods…
• meets their social and environmental standards
• complies with domestic labor laws in the countries where goods are produced, and
• is consistent with International Labor Organization’s (ILO’s) Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work.
Four Products, Endless Varieties

- Coffee: caffeinated and decaf, sold as whole bean, ground, freeze-dried, pillow packs, Keurig cups...
- Tea: Bulk or bags
- Sugar: Packets, granular, cubes
- Cocoa: hot and cold beverage chocolate, in bulk or packets

Best Practices

How to get the best selection and prices on Fair Trade goods
Best Practice: Add Fair Trade to your Core List

- “Market basket list” or “core list” includes items purchased in the largest quantities
- ~ 100 products, not thousands
- Used to award to lowest bidder
- Gain the greatest discounts – up to 65%
- Core list is the best place for fair trade items!
- Prohibit or remove non-fair trade items
- Use usage numbers from comparable conventional products
Best Practice: Secure the Right to “Opportunity Buys”

Typically, all products are purchased from the same vendor, sometimes restricted by the contract.

If your contract protects “Opportunity Buys” for fair trade goods without a penalty, you can get the products you want from another vendor.

www.ResponsiblePurchasing.org
Strategies: Secure a Wide Selection of Fair Trade Goods

- Let bidders know that you plan to purchase ONLY fair trade coffee, etc. (do not include a line item for conventional)
- Publicize bid request widely
- Use a Vendor Questionnaire, or other point-based system
- Allow for multiple awards
A Word on... Artisan Goods

Consider:

- Gift baskets
- Décor
- Kitchen items for breakroom
Strategies: Maximize Fair Trade Impact

- Establish or work with a committee
- Ask vendor to track purchases
- Set goals to speed implementation/expansion
- Consider additional products, such as bananas
What’s on the Horizon?

• New sizes and containers for coffee and tea
• Domestic fair trade
• Support for sustainable and just agricultural products is growing
